One of the biggest challenges that teachers across the globe face is how to effectively teach multilevel classes. Planning lessons in such contexts can be even more daunting when dealing with large class sizes.

In this webinar, we will explore strategies that engage students regardless of class size or level, including:

- creating different versions of handouts to present content at multiple levels
- utilizing higher-level students as assistant teachers
- setting up stations that meet the needs of different groups
- pairing students to maximize opportunities to use the language

My name is Son. My wife Quyen and I live in Hanoi. On our last vacation, we went to Sapa. We got there by train. We stayed at a homestay for four days. While we were there, we went hiking and visited some villages. We also bought some handicrafts and ate the local food. We had a great time in Sapa!
Reading (lower level)

Questions are simple.

1. Where did Son and Quyen go on their last vacation?

2. How did they get there?

3. Where did they stay?

4. How long did they stay?

5. What did they do there?
My name is Son. My wife Quyen and I love to travel. On our last vacation, we decided to go Sapa, because we love the mountains and cooler temperatures. We thought about going there by car, but it's a long drive, so we went by train instead. Sapa has a lot of hotels and resorts, but we wanted a more authentic experience, so we decided to stay at a homestay just outside of the city. While we were there, we went hiking to some beautiful villages. We also bought some really nice handicrafts and ate the local food, which was delicious. Although we wanted to spend a week there, we were only able to stay for four days. Overall, we had a great time, and we plan to go back again in the future.
Reading (higher level)

Questions include “Why” to make them more complex.

1. Where did Son and Quyen go on their last vacation?
2. Why did they go there?
3. How did they get there?
4. Where did they stay?
5. Why did they stay there?
6. What did they do there?
7. How long was their vacation?
My name is Huong. I live in Hanoi with my husband Quang and my daughter Ha. On our last vacation, we went to Da Nang. We got there by plane. We stayed in a hotel for five nights. While we were there, we went swimming and relaxed on the beach. We also visited Hoi An and ate the local food. It was a fun vacation!
Writing (higher level)

Write a story about your last vacation. (Students use the story they read as a model)

My name is Linh. My husband Thanh and I live in Hanoi. One of our favorite hobbies is visiting new places. On our last holiday, we decided to go to Nha Trang, because we love the sea. We often travel by car, but it's a long way, so we decided to fly there instead. Na Trang has a lot of great accommodations. We stayed at a beautiful resort for five days, because it was right on the beach. While we were there, we went swimming every day, and we also relaxed on the beach. In addition, we got massages and enjoyed the delicious local seafood. All in all, it was a great vacation!
Sharing & Questions

What activities have you done to address different levels?
Topics

• Identifying Levels
• Creating Activities for Different Levels
• Implementing Level-Based Stations
• Utilizing Assistant Teachers
• Exploring Final Thoughts
Level-Based Stations

• Create stations where students have different tasks

• The tasks at each station are harder for the higher-level students, but the context is the same

• Sample Activity
  • Teach vocabulary and prepositions first
  • Have 3 stations
    • Vocabulary and Grammar Review
    • Speaking
    • Writing
Stations (lower level) – Vocabulary

- Matching activities work well

wardrobe  bed  plant  rug  mirror  stool  vanity  fan  picture  pillows  nightstand
Stations (higher level) - Vocabulary

• Put students into pairs or groups of three
• Students take turns describing vocabulary words
• The other student or students have to guess which word they are describing
• If there is more time, students can write sentences using the words

wardrobe  bed  plant  rug  mirror  stool  vanity  fan  picture  pillows  nightstand
Stations (lower level) - Speaking

Students ask and answer questions. Answers are simple.

A: Where are the pillows?
B: The pillows are on the bed.

A: Where is the stool?
B: The stool is in front of the vanity.

A: Where is the bed?
B: The bed is between the nightstands.
Stations (higher level) - Speaking

Students ask and answer questions. Answers are more complex.

A: Where is the fan?
B: The fan is on the floor next to the bed.

A: Where are the pictures?
B: The pictures are on the wall above the mirror.

A: Where is the bed?
B: The bed is on the rug between the nightstands.
Students look at the picture and write simple sentences.

1. The wardrobe is next to the vanity.
2. The bed is on the rug.
3. The pictures are above the mirror.
4. The nightstand is between the vanity and the bed.
Students look at the picture and write a story.

There are many things in my bedroom. My bed is on the rug between the nightstands. I have three plants. The large plant is on the floor in front of the curtains. One of the smaller plants is on the vanity, and the other one is on the shelf next to the wardrobe. There are three pictures on the wall above the mirror.
Stations (higher level) - Writing

For higher levels, it’s also possible to use a different picture to make it more challenging.

How can you use stations in your classroom?
Topics

• Identifying Levels
• Creating Activities for Different Levels
• Implementing Level-Based Stations
• Utilizing Assistant Teachers
• Exploring Final Thoughts
Assistant Teachers

- In small groups, have one higher-level student be the group leader.
- In pairs, put a higher-level student with a lower-level student.
- Teaching and helping others reinforces language learning, so both the higher-level and lower-level students benefit.
Information Gap - Vacation

• Put students into groups of three
• Make the higher-level student the group leader
• Each student gets an advertisement about a trip
• Students first put their information into a chart
• Then, they ask each other questions to complete their chart
• Finally, they discuss the options and decide which trip to take
• The group leader facilitates the activity and discussion
