

Behold Such Bliss

All bright, all beautiful, manifold and unique
All creatures bright and lively and still distinct
Each of beauty unparallel. Behold the great miracle of creation!
You made them all in your untamed omniscience and
Love. We plant and you water, germinate and cause to blossom.
We all, lads and lasses stared hungrily from our river baths,
From the banks of a still stream,
At that beloved and enticing landscape, over the
Belt of green stretching along the body of water.
Such bliss couldn't be of a mortal soul!
