You can use the same pre-, during-, and post-reading approach to reading Forum articles that you might recommend to students. Before reading, consider the title and scan the text; then answer these questions:

- What do I expect this article to be about?
- What do I already know about this topic?
- How might reading this article benefit me?

As you read, keep these questions in mind:

- What assumptions does the author make—about teaching, teachers, students, and learning?
- Are there key vocabulary words that I'm not familiar with or that the author is using in a way that is new to me? What do they seem to mean?
- What examples does the author use to illustrate practical content? Are the examples relevant to my teaching?

After reading, consider answering these questions on your own and discussing them with colleagues:

- How is the author's context similar to and different from my own?
- What concept—technique, approach, or activity—does the author describe? What is its purpose?
- Would I be able to use the same concept in my teaching? If not, how could I adapt it?

ON THE COVER

Southern Vernacular is a mixed-media artwork made using pen and ink, with a hard pastel overlay, by Indiana artist Ruth Hayes. Her decades-long love affair with the myriad forms of architecture seen around the world inspires every piece she creates.
