

Focusing students' attention first on the flow of given and new information, then on how vocabulary is used to structure information, is a good way to model cohesive writing for students.

(See page 2)

americanenglish.state.gov