

They believed him

They believed him, because he was so much of a role model

They believed him, because he pampered them so much with gifts

They believed him, because it was a matter of life and death

They believed him; maybe it was the only thing that would give them hope

They believed him, because he really knew how to choose his words

They believed him;

Coz he always had an answer to their problems

I really believe, they believed him;

Because everyone believes in something.
